VOL. 14, NUMBER 87 — MONESSEN, PA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 23 1915 — SIX CENTS THE WEEK

Once we thought work was a curse; then it came to us that it was a necessary evil; and yesterday the truth dawned upon us that it is a blessed privilege.—Hubbard.

Abolish fear and every man and woman is an orator or artist. The criminal and the untruthful person are obsessed by fear until the genial current of their life is turned awry.

Emancipation Day Was Celebrated Here Yesterday

The Emancipation Day celebration coupled with the county convention of the Afro-American Protective League, attracted many colored people to this city yesterday. Delegations were present from Greensburg, Latrobe, Irwin, Mt. Pleasant, Scottdale, Harmony, Pricedale, North Belle Vernon and Monongahela. The convention was called to order by President William Taylor of this city at 2:30 in the Assembly hall. After the delegates were seated, the session was postponed until late in the afternoon.

The Emancipation parade in the afternoon was one of the big features of the day. Headed by the Civil war veteran Gabriel Butler, and followed by President William Tayor and Ex-president W. A. Spriggs, with the Monongahela Union band and Chief Burgess A. G. Dunlap and the entertainment committee in automobiles.

Next came the float with the emancipation queen and ladies of honor and flower girs. Miss Francis Ferguson was elected queen. The Snfragette's float was next, followed by the Sunday school scholars of the A. M. E. and Baptist church. The delegates in automobiles brought up the rear of the parade.

After traversing the principal streets of the town, the marchers went to Electric park where Burgess Dunlap delivered the address of welcome and presented the visitors with the key to the city. The Emancipation proclamation was read by Mrs. John Arnold of this city, and this was followed by the orator of the day, Hon. Samuel Pangburn, organizer of the American Coal Workers' Union, who held the audience spell bound for one hour, taking for his subject "Our Emancipation." He spoke of the good the race had accomplished in the past 52 years for the country and state nad urged that his people stand by the flag and be good citizens.

The convention was called to order at 5:30 and following the business meeting, officers were elected for the ensuing year. The election resulted as follows:

Alex Pangburn—President,, Monessen.

William Farfax—1st vice Pres., Jeannette.

William Boler,—2nd vice president, New Kensington.

Secretary—Joseph Johnson, Monessen.

R. H. Robinson—cor. sec., N. Belle Vernon.

Warwick Anderson — Treasurer, Greensburg.

Following is the executive board: Frank Carnett, Pricedale; Ben Holly, Greensburg; J. W. Powell, New Kensington; Wm. Jackson, Latrobe; J. W. Claybaugh, Scottdale.

In the evening a reception and dance was held in the Assembly hall which was attended by over 200 couples. Myers orchestra of Pittsburgh furnished the music and the guests enjoyed a delightful evening. The next meeting will be held Sept. 22, 1916 at Greensburg.

High School Foot Ball Team Ready

The candidates for Monessen High school's 1915 eleven, have gone through their first two weeks of practice. The men have been under the tutelage of Coaches Imler, Townsend and White, all former stars, Imler from Franklin, Townsend from Allegheny and White from California Normal.

These men have a big squad in charge, Townsend and White coaching the first eleven and Imler the second. Many innovations as played to the game in the valley have been introduced by these men, and despite the graduation of several stars, the prospects for a successful season are bright. The coaches have already gained the full confidence of their men by their personality and ability; a nucleus of seven of last year's team works the raw recruits into an already machine-like eleven; many promising applicants for jobs have presented themselves to the coaches.

From last year's team are Williams, Preston and McKinley for the backfield and Capt. Newhouse, McMcQuaide, Boag and Hess for the line To the back field candidates have been added Johnson and Frazier and to the line, Miller, Ingram, Griffith, Savo, Reed, Ruse, Lewis, Wilde, Lightfoot and Montsier.

Signal practice, running and tackling have been indulged in this past week, while for two hours Friday evening the coaches held a secret signal practice in the new High school building. The plans for the month of September were laid before the men. training suggestions presented to them and a blackboard bill of the complicated plays offered to clear up the situations. The coaches told the men in unmistakable language just what was expected of them, on and off the field. The boys are confident of a successful season.

The High school gym offers the men a convenient place to dress and indulge in the beneficial shower baths. We say to our townspeople, watch the 1915 football team of the good old M. H. S.

The manager, "Jim" McQuaide has arranged the following attractive schedule. M. H. S. plays all the possible claimants of the valley championship which last years was held by Monongahela City. The schedule:

West Newton, Oct. 1.
Turtle Creek, Oct. 8.
Jeannette, Oct. 16.
Donora, Oct. 23.
McKeesport, Oct. 29.
Monongahela, Nov. 5.
Braddock. Nov. 12.
Charleroi, Nov. 19.

Concert Sunday

POLITICALLY DEAD

R. W. Herbert, editor of the Tribune daily and Press Weekly, died a political death Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock just as the polls closed. He lingered very low during the entire day with his political combine at the bedside. They all saw him breathe his last. His illness dated back several years and while he made a hard fight, he lost. Fate seemed to decree that he had finished his work and that he should go. It is needless to reflect upon the past. It is not for the living to add or detract, suffice it to say, "keep sleeping."

Prospects Bright

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 23—The University of Pittsburgh football squad will return home from the Windber training camp the latter part of this week, as the University classes open next Monday. The first game is not until the following Saturday, October 2nd, when the aggressive Westminster college team of New Wilmington, Pa., comes to Forbes field for the first game of the season.

Westminster always has a good team that has been giving Pitt trouble in the early season encounters for a number oi years. They are said to be stronger than ever this year and Pittsburghers are anticipating a real game when the proteges of Coach Warner line up against them. Warner realizes that this game is not going to be a cinch and has taught the Blue and Gold men some of his famous tricks with the idea of winning by a good size score if possible.

Of the 35 or more candidates who have been trying out at "Camp Hamilton," at least 25 look to have real varsity class. All the veterans are coming up to expectations and some of the men who were second string candidates last year are making a good showing. Sutherland, the big Scot, who was a sub-tackle last year, has been tried out as guard and he and the giant, Soppitt should make a great pair to take the place of Capt. Smith and Reese. Sutherland is a determined fighter who only lacked experience last year. Shapira, who subbed at center in 1914, will be sent to a tackle. He has played the position in "prep" school and will fit in well there.

Carlson and Herron, the varsity ends, are both going well. Carlson is a Bellefonte academy product and Herron is from the Monessen High. "Bob" Peck at center is the great fighter of old and has caught the eye of the crafty Warner by his aggressiveness. Thornhill, the Beaver High boy, looks good for a regular tackle berth. Capt. Williamson is going fast at quarterback and Miller and Hastings are the same great pair at the halves. "Ted" Fry is punting well and hitting the line hard.

Among the most promising men are George McLaren of Peabody High, Pittsburgh, McNulty of Mercersburg academy, Hilty of Peabody High, and Meadows of Central High, Pittsburgh, Seidel and Stahl of Bellefonte Academy, Easterday of Lisbon Ohio High, George Heil of Topeka High, Gougler of Conway Hall, Siemon of Indiana Normal school and Kendrick, Meadows, Hilty, McClelland, Friedlander and Bond of the 1914 Freshman team. McQuistion, DeHart and "Jim" Morrow of last year's squad, are playing an impressive game.

It is the general opinion that the material is the best Pitt ever had.

—A great picture is coming to the Glympic theatre, Thursday, Sept. 30. Dainty little Ella Hall in "Jewell." Critics everywhere speak highly of this picture. 86-6t

Lost Four Toes

With every toe on his right foot completely severed and a large gash in his instep and a broken ankle, Joe France of Charleroi, who was riding a motorcycle in Brownsville yesterday, was taken to the Uniontown hospital. France with a companion attempted to pass a bakery wagon on a step grade and went too close to the curb. The wagon was knocked across the street and France clung to the rear seat of the motorcycle, the engine of which was going very fast. The toe of his oxford was completely torn off and every toe on his foot with the exception of the middle was strewn across the street.

W. Dick Reamer Winner For County Commissioner

It will take the official count to determine the majority of some of the winners in the primary contest of Tuesday. The contest between John S. Sell and John D. Miller for controller was very close, leaving Sell with a lead of 140 votes out of 178 precincts. It is believed Sell will be nominated. The fight for commissioner out of 183 precincts gives Boyd 5,214, Reamer, 4,319, Steel 4,124, Muse 4,027. Cremer is a winner over J. B. Wall for Register of Wills and it is believed his majority will be about 2,500. Out of 176 precincts, Cremer leads Wall by 2,058.

The nominee for county treasurer is Dr. A. D. Miller of Manor, who takes first place. His pleurality is not yet known. John E. Shields will have more than 1,500 votes over his closest opponent, who is Dr. R. M. Waldron of Greensburg. Coffman takes third place, Darr, fourth and Fleming, fifth.

In the judicial contest it is believed that Judge A. D. McConnell will be trimmed down to less than 1,000 votes over George B. Shaw, Curtis Gregg getting about 3,300 votes in the entire county.

Dr. Harkins is the winner for Coroner by a big margin. Deputy Coroner Potts was his opponent. Harry S. Miller gets a big lead for Recorder over Dr. McMurray.

A Good Loser

Jesse J. B. Wall is a good loser. Mr. Wall dropped into the Independent office this morning to chat a little about the weather and the war, and incidentally the political question arose. Mr. Wall takes his defeat in a dignified and manly manner, adding that it is part of life to meet disappointments. He said "I did the best I could, spoke ill of no man, and I have nothing to regret." If every man who enters a political contest would enter it with the feeling that he has only one chance out of a number, and that if he wins he will be pleased, but that if defeated he will refrain from getting sore at the other fellow, people who aspire to office would get along better. It takes a good loser to help the fellow at the election who helped defeat you at the primary, but this is the only spirit. By his attitude toward all men, Mr. Wall will make many friends.

Place of Reformers

According to Robert E. Crow, former state's attorney for Illinois and recently appointed attorney for the police trial board of Chicago, "so-called reform organizations do more harm than good. They create suspicion and interfere with the co-operation which should exist between police and public." In other words a community pays taxes to maintain a police force. This organization does its work effectively and quietly. It does not aim to be spectacular or to play to the grand stand. Then along comes a reformer, and "exposes" something beneath the nose of the police. He indulges in hyperbole for the benefit of the newspapers. Conditions are "shocking." "Vice is rampant." Morals have gone to the eternal bow-wows. He parades his discoveries before the eyes of the public. He gloats over the haughtiness he has found. He revels in it, and is glad that he, at least, is above temptation, and can unearth a cess pool without soiling his fingers. It is an old story to the police. If vice and crime did not exist, there would be no use for the strong arm of the law. But where the police might have dealt with the situation rationally, the reformer, nine times out of ten, merely spills the beans. The work of the police is undone. The expose becomes a nine days' wonder, then is forgotten, while the reformer plans another coup. Meanwhile, however, confidence in the police force is lessened. The police, sensing this lack of confidence, become indifferent and don't care. The reformer has not remedied things in the least. He has, if anything, made them worse.

A Practical Help

The Chicago City Gardens Association has found a practical help for the "back-to-the-land" movement through the cultivation of vacant spaces within the city limits by the poor and unemployed. Each year the association apportions 400 eighth-acre farms to as many families who stand in need of moral or financial assistance. A large number of these amateur farmers become attracted to the work, learn the financial returns to be obtained from right methods, get some idea of scientific agriculture, and each year a large number of "graduates" leave the "baby farms" to engage in the regular work of truck farming on a larger scale. The work in Chicago is under the direction of Laura Dainty Pelham, president of the association, who has prevailed upon the owners of large tracts of land to donate them for gardening purposes to the association. She is working upon the principle that the raw Italian or Slav immigrant will not go to the country direct from Castle Garden, but that with a little training and encouragement, he will see the greater profits possible for him through farming and eventually will leave the city and go back to the land.

A Novel Scheme

A man and a woman dropped into a small town and put up at the best hotel. The next morning they secured a rig each, and started over the country asking the farmer folks for a chicken for an orphan's home. After two days begging they sold the chickens to a local produce man for $30 and left town. Their loot included several cash donations.

A variation of the scheme is for the a man, wearing some sort of badge, to call on the farmers under the name of the Department of Health and demand to see his poultry. After examination he condemns twenty or thirty hens and tells the farmer they will have to be killed because they are diseased. He very kindly offers to take the chickens and do the killing himself. If the farmer consents, the man takes the chickens to the nearest commission merchant and sells them. The scheme is being worked all over the country. If a man or woman calls on you with a demand that looks suspicious, call up your local authorities and ask by what right they are asking to inspect your stock or poultry. When you get the answer, turn them over to the police.

The Home Guard

Along the wood-fringed roads, up hill and down dale, the copper wireways of the Bell System run, binding the countryside into closer harmony, adding to the social happiness.

It keeps the farmer in touch with the market and makes farm life worth living.

Can there be any stronger proof offered than the evidence of Monessen residents? After you have read the following, quietly answer the question.

Mrs. . Koerner, 119 Knox avenue, Monesen, says: "I had a bad fall which injured my back. I suffered from constant pains across my loins and in the morning I was always worse. If I stooped over, a sharp pain caught me and I couldn't straighten. The secretions from my kidneys were unnatural and caused me annoyance. I didn't rest well and rheumatic pains made it hard for me to get about. I was often so lame that I had to sit on cushions and I had puffy sacks beneath my eyes. I doctored and tried different medicines, but got no relief. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the irsch Drug Co. drove most of the trouble away. I take this medicine off and on as a kidney tonic and it keeps me in good health."

The Girl He Left Behind Him

By F. A. MITCHEL

John Hobbs was a Yorkshireman, born on his father's farm, worked on his father's farm and was contented on his father's farm. He had received only a few years' schooling, but he was a bit of a philosopher in his own way. He was engaged to be married to Ellen Brierly and expected to inherit her father's farm and live and die there. Ellen was a high strung, emotional girl and when the war with Germany broke out insisted that John should enlist.

"What for?" asked John

"Why, all the men are enlisting."

"It seems to me, if that's so, some one 'ad better stay 'ome and do the farmin'."

"But think of the excitement of going off to the war with the flags flying, the drums beating and the band playing 'The Girl I Left Behind Me!'"

"And hobblin' back singin' 'the leg I left be'ind me'"

"John, I'm afraid you're a coward."

John looked at her, leaning on the spade with which he had been digging, then threw it down and said:

"I can't stand that from the girl I love I'm goin' to enlist."

"Forgive me," said Ellen, throwing her arms about him. "I knew you weren't afraid to go to the war. I thought you needed a little prodding"

"I m goin' to war to please you: I don't believe in wars The fellers that go either don't come back or, if they do, they find the excitement all over and people talkin' about somethin' else. They don't cut no figure at all. The fellers that stayed at 'ome has got the jobs, and the soldier 'as to git a livin' the best way 'e can."

"Don't fear for that, Johnny, dear. I'll be 'ere to welcome you back, and if you are maimed I'll take care of you for the rest of your life."

She kissed him and patted him to make him feel better about the sacrifice he was making, but Johnny refused to be comforted. However, he went to the nearest recruiting station and enlisted. When he marched away with the regimental band playing "The Girl I Left Behind Me" Ellen stood by the roadside waving her handkerchief at him, her eyes bedimmed with tears.

One day, the better part of a year later, a discharged soldier, walking along a road in Yorkshire on one flesh leg and a wooden one, met a man with a hoe on his shoulder.

"Mister," said the ex-soldier, "Hi been to the war. Hi was taken prisoner by the Germans on the battlefield, all hexcept my leg, that was shot off and wasn't worth anything. I been a prisoner for months, but was hexchanged not long ago and sent 'ome. I went from this place and want to arsk you about some people I left 'ere. Wot's become o' Ellen Brierly?"

"Wot's Ellen Brierly to you?" snarled the man.

"Wot's she to me? A good deal, seein' that Hi went to the war for 'er sake and left my leg in Belgium for 'er sake too."

"Are you John 'Obbs?"

"Fauncy I are, wot's left o' me. Besides my leg, my right 'and 'as gone and my left heye"

"And you've come back to marry your sweetheart?"

"Hi faucy. She promised to take 'are o' me for the rest o' my life if I came back maimed."

The man looked thoughtful, stroked his beard, changed the leg he was standing on several times, then said:

"This 'ere promisin' to take care o' any one for life is a bad business."

"'Ow so?"

"I promised to take care of a woman for 'er life, and I'm a-doin' of it, but it's a 'ard job. I wouldn't mind givin' 'er to you to take care of you."

"I don't want 'er. I want Ellen Brierly, the girl I left behind me when I went to the war and the girl I went to the war to please."

"I'm sorry you did that."

"Why?"

"Well, your goin' to the war got me into a lot o' trouble. I was mighty independent in them days. I 'ad no worryment wotsoever. A girl took a shine to me and married me. I ain't 'ad no peace since."

"Is that wot comes o' matrimony?"

"That's wot come to me. See 'ere, young fellow. I fancy it was very 'ard stayin' in German ospitals and leavin' your leg and your fingers behind you and losin' your eye, but you missed a lot o' troubles worse than that by goin'."

"Wot troubles?"

"The troubles o' matrimony. You missed 'em; I got 'em."

"'Ow so?"

"I married the girl you left behind you."

"Wot! You married Ellen Brierly?"

"I did. I knew that a feller named John 'Obbs that 'ad gone to the war was expectin' to marry 'er when 'e got back—if he ever did git back—and I thought I was wrongin' 'im I don't mind doin' the best I can to make amends If you want 'er I'll light out and say nothin' about it, leavin' 'er to you."

John Hobbs thought awhile before accepting or declining this very self sacrificing offer. Finally he said:

"That's very kind 'earted o' you, my friend, but seein' 'ow you and Ellen is married it wouldn't be 'onorable o' me to crowd you out. I m goin' to my father and mother, and I fancy they'll be glad to take care o' me So long."

And he stumped on.

SOUSA AND HIS BAND AT PITTSBURGH EXPO

Greatest of Concert Organizations Entertains Crowds

John Philip Sousa's concerts have no imitators and perhaps his ability to keep imitators away has proven his ability to maintain a higher standard of excellence in the music world and in his own special field more than any one thing. Sousa and his wonderful band are at the Pittsburgh Exposition and will be there for the remainder of this and all of next week. Four concerts a day, two in the afternoon and two in the evening, are being given. With the band, an organization made up of expert artists on their various instruments, each a soloist of more than ordinary renown, there are four special soloists, Miss Grace Hoffman soprano soloist, Miss Susan Tompkins, violinist; Miss Lucille Orrell, 'cellist, and Herbert Clark, the greatest living coronet soloist.

Such an array of musical features is making the historic Point in Pittsburgh a mecca for the lovers of music from all over the Pittsburgh district. Sousa alone is a wonder worker in this respect. For almost a quarter-century he and his great organization have been an annual visitor to the Pittsburgh Exposition. He is more familiar with it and its tastes and what its people want than any other musician. He has brought out more of his noted compositions at the Pittsburgh Exposition than anywhere else, and continues to do so. Sousa began his tour with his band last April and the demand has been so great for him that the band has been booked ahead until April, 1916, an entire year.

JOHN PHILIP SOUSA.

Excursions to Pittsburgh and for the Exposition begin this week, the first general excursion being given by the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad over all its lines. Next week, Sept 23, special excursions will be run over the Baltimore and Ohio, the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh and the Bessemer roads. These excursionists will be in time to hear the great March King and his wonderful concert band that has traveled the world over and made America famous as it went from the South Sea Islands to the North Pacific and from India to the brilliant capitals of Europe.

The Exposition season is advancing. Its development has been little short of marvelous this season. The displays combine some of the rarest and most interesting ever shown in all the twenty-seven years of its useful career. Nothing has exceeded the display of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad which has brought some of the most ancient and startling relics of transportation methods of people in the world, into a single collection. The government display, and that of the schools and the Pittsburgh railways, the hame building organizations, a feature that is worthy of study by every man who intends, at some time in the future, to build his own home. There is not a nook or corner that has not some absorbing feature of interest, either in the form of entertainment or instruction.

The great spectacular production of The Siege of Antwerp, an electro-mechanical scenic showing of one of the great military events of the present European war, is attracting thousands to Mechanical hall. It is like the other features of this season, a new an intensely interesting sidelight of the Exposition.

Byron's Famous Swim.

Byron was cruising up the Dardanelles in a British warship, the Salsette, when he accomplished his famous swim from Abydos to Sestos, the distance in little over four miles, being covered in seventy minutes. "You will smile at this exploit," the poet wrote to R. C. Dallas in a letter describing the swim, "but as it made an ancient immortal I see no reason why a modern may not be permitted to boast of it, particularly as I had no mistress to comfort me at landing."

According to Hobhouse, his traveling companion, Byron "had previously made a more perilous but less celebrated passage, for I recollect that when we were in Portugal he swam from Old Lisbon to Belem castle and, having to contend with a tide and countercurrent, the wind blowing freshly, was but little less than two hours in crossing the river."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Keeper and Convict

By JOHN Y. LARNED

Tommy Ruggles and Eddie Barnes were schoolmates. Not only were they schoolmates, but little chums. They left the grammar school and entered the high school at the same time. From the high school they went out into the world to fight the battle of life. Ruggles drifted into the political arena and after an election, during which he had done good work for his party, received the appointment of head of the state penitentiary.

Barnes became a merchant in a small way. He finally formed a partnership with a man who swindled him out of all he possessed. A quarrel ensued that ended in a scuffle, during which Barnes threw his opponent, whose head struck some hard substance, and his skull was fractured He died, and Barnes was sent to the penitentiary to serve a term of ten years.

When Ruggles and Barnes met, after not having seen each other for several years—the one as keeper, the other as convict—both shed tears.

"Tom," said Barnes, "I'm sorry you are my jailer. I cannot serve out my term, and I am bound to try to escape And I wish to say to you now that I expect you to do your duty by the state like an honorable man. You may kill me while trying to capture me when I try to escape"

"Don't try the escape game, Ed. It seldom, if ever, pays. And in this case it would be hard on us both. I should certainly do my duty, and you know where that duty would lie. To me you are only one of hundreds of prisoners for whom I am responsible"

Barnes made an effort to serve out his sentence without any attempt to escape. But one day an excellent opportunity offered itself. He was in the yard of the prison near a gateway, which was opened to admit a cart. A storm came up, and the gatekeeper was blinded by a cloud of dust and lightning. Barnes slipped out and ran like a deer.

He ran into a house not far from the prison, where he found a woman. It is difficult to repress sympathy with one hounded for his life or his liberty, and the woman furnished him with a suit of her husband's clothes, and Barnes persuaded her to give him a revolver. But Ruggles at the head of a force was after him, and the convict was seen leaving the house. He had a good start, and when they reached him he was on rising ground behind a stone wall ready to defend himself. Ruggles ordered his men to keep back, telling them that he would go forward and endeavor to persuade the prisoner to surrender. He walked forward till he heard Barnes call out:

"Don't come any farther, Tom I'm desperate!"

"Give yourself up, Ed. I've got a dozen men down on the road. It will be suicide for you to resist, and to hurt you would be an awful thing for me."

"I can't go back to that life. I'd rather die."

There was a grim silence between them for a few moments; then Barnes added:

"Go back and send your men to take me. I don't want to hurt you, and I'm going to use up the six shots in my revolver"

"I wouldn't send my men where I can do all there is to be done If any one is to be killed in your recapture I prefer that it should be myself."

"That's not right. I've got to die; you haven't. Don't shoot your old chum, or compel him to shoot you You'll give me a better chance for my life by sending one of your men, or all of them for that matter."

"You know I couldn't do that. I might as well resign my post and lose myself in another country. But it isn't my position that I'm thinking of: it's my honor. The state trusts me to carry out the will of the people, and I'm bound to do so. If you were my own brother or my own father I would be obliged to take you all the same."

"I see how it is, Tom. We're forced by fate into this position. If you'll agree to kill me I'll step out and give you a shot."

"No; you'll have to defend yourself. I must do my duty to the state, but I'm not the state executioner."

"Well, I won't be captured, and you won't accept my life. I don't see that there's anything to be done but for us to say 'Goodby.'"

"You'd better surrender, Ed. With time off for good behavior you'll only have about six years to serve."

"Six years of such life is far worse than death."

"If you won't surrender promise me that you'll defend yourself to the best of your ability; that you won't dare me If you let me kill you you'll force me to live a life of regret that would be worse than four six years of imprisonment."

"I wish I could stand it to do the rest of the time. It would save you."

"Promise"

There was a delay, after which Barnes promised that he would try to bring himself to the scratch of firing on his old friend

The men down in the road heard two shots; then all was silent. Rushing up the incline, they saw the keeper and the convict lying dead, clasping each other's hand. A trail of blood from where each had stood when he fired indicated that they had crawled to each other.

Tomorrow, Friday—Popular plays and players present the exquisite stage star, Florence Reed in Clyde Fitchis romantic drama, "Her Own Way," in five parts. Synopsis of the story::

Georgiana Carley, the woman and Richard Coleman, the man, have been friends since childhood and have grown to love each other without having become aware of the fact. Sam Coast, a rich young man, formerly a rough miner, has also fallen in love with the woman and has determined to leave nothing undone for her love. During the Phillipine war, many young men volunteer for service. Dick Coleman, one among them goes to bid farewell to Georgiana Carley, at the same time to propose to her, but Sam breaks in the conversation while they are talking and tells Coleman that the has proposed to Georgiana and has been accepted. That was not true, yet it naturally upset Dick and causes him to go away without any declaration of his intentions. He goes to the Phillipines and Sam Coast sees to it that no letters from Dick ever reach Georginana, keeping her in despair. Finally reports come that Dick had been killed.

The only brother of Georgiana who is rich through money left him by his parents, speculates to a point of ruination of his wealth, honor and money. Then Sam Coast appears to Georgiana offering his assistance to save her brother, but she must accept him and his wealth or suffer hardship and poverty. Georgiana after she has refused him repeatedly, sacrifices her own love for her family. But Dick was not killed, was only wounded. He escapes from the Phillipines and arrives in time to prevent the marriage.

SATURDAY—"In the Sunset Country" with Sherman Bainbridge and Luella Maxim, in three reels. Second, Animated Weekly with world weekly and daily incidents and accidents. Third, One of Jokers unusual comedies, and "The Diamond from the Sky."

Aeroplane Raids.

There is nothing that I know of more hideous than an aerial bombardment. It requires an entire mental readjustment. The sky, which has always symbolized peace, suddenly spells death. Bombardment by the big guns of an advancing army is not unexpected. There is time for flight, a chance, too, for a reprisal. But against these raiders of the sky there is nothing. One sits and waits, and no town is safe. One moment there is a peaceful village with war twenty, fifty miles away. The next minute hell breaks loose. Houses are destroyed, sleeping children die in their cradles the streets echo and re-echo with the din of destruction. The reply of the anti-air craft guns is feeble, and at night futile. There is no bustle of escape. The streets are empty and dead, and in each house people, family groups, non combatants, folk who ask only the right to work and love and live, sit and wait with blanched faces.—Mary Roberts Rinehart in Saturday Evening Post.

Insure Pigs in Sweden.

Though it is commonly known that there is scarcely anything in the world that cannot be insured, the layman would probably hesitate before he hastened to Lloyd's to insure his pigs. In Sweden, however, no difficulties stand in his way. In fact, there are several competing companies all anxious to insure the lives of pigs belonging to the small farmer. But as yet the industry has not developed as much as it might, since out of the 700 Swedish institutions which insure live stock there are only forty which insure pigs. These societies are most numerous in the thickly populated districts, where they insure pigs only. The pigs insured must be at first in good condition, and the agencies refuse to pay if the animals die in consequence of ill treatment or neglect.—Boston Transcript.

Three Prisoners

Three prisoners faced Burgess Dunlap this morning, and while one was fined $5.00 and costs, the other two were allowed their freedom. Mike Brenzok, on a drunken spree, tried to tear down the Pittsburgh Steel mill. Two watchmen caught him and after tying him with chains, called the patrol. He paid a fine of $7.00. Harry Taylor, no home, was drunk yesterday, but on his promise to get out of town, was discharged. William Brantley paid his first visit to the police station this morning on a charge of drunkenness. He was allowed his freedom.
